

GETTING INTO THAT PLAY MOOD

It's another great day at Al Muna trying to get the children ready for the wondrous drama workshop. Getting the children ready and getting them in their costumes has been a challenge. The children are learning their lines very quickly and we thank their parents for helping them and also helping the school achieve their goal of making this play spectacular.

While looking around the busy school taking pictures and videos we noticed a group measuring and modelling silky, red fabric. As we mentioned in yesterday's blog, we have got different groups doing different activities.

One of our main groups was the group doing the acting. They were rehearsing over and over again until they get everything right. Their dress rehearsals are going great and they are getting better by the minute.

We also have the Arabic group doing the 'Princess and the Pea'. That is also going great, they are putting costumes together.

Also there was lots of sketching going on in the field, children were being so creative and drawing animals and making props for the play.

The talented choir were singing beautifully and brilliantly in the correct pitch. They are picking up the words in no time. They are being taught by Miss Smith (Year 5 teacher). Everybody has a job and they are all happy with what they are achieving.
